Here we go. Time for another edition of the wiring regulations and the associated qualification exam. Whichever course or supplier you use, make sure you see a good selection of their content before parting with any cash. There are quite a few companies offering 18th Edition training. Some do not have experience of online learning and are desperately trying to get into the market. Some have credibility but their content is dry and dull. Make sure you know what you are buying.

Learning Lounge has been creating and distributing quality electrical training for over three decades and the online platform has been used by over a hundred colleges and thousands of learners since 2005. Our course is a fully contained, interactive experience that will take you to the point that you can confidently sit the 18th Edition Wiring Regulations BS 7671:2018 exam from whichever examining body you choose.

The course is presented by names you may know well from the world of electrical training.

Dave Austin has been the lead presenter on the Learning lounge for over 30 years and has fronted Tech Talks for the NICEIC. He has presented on the BBC and Sky.

Gary Gundry is one of most respected electrical trainers in the UK and is credited in the 18th Edition for helping the IET to compile the master document and proofreading the published version.

Tony Cable is an electrical industry legend who is known from his time as a technical presenter with the NICEIC along with appearances on the BBC.

These three experts guide you through the 18th Edition regs book with knowledge, insight, practical application and firm focus on what you need to pass the exam.

Choosing your course

In the past, it has been possible to take an update exam for BS 7671. This update exam was for anyone who had a good working knowledge of the previous edition of the regulations and only needed to be tested on the elements introduced with a new edition.

There is no update exam option for the 18th Edition of the Wiring Regulations BS 7671:2018. Success when taking the exam requires thorough knowledge of the whole book and not just the changes introduced by the 18th Edition. So choosing the right level of study is important. To help you become exam ready we offer two course options. To help you choose, take our assessment to decide if your knowledge of BS 7671 is current enough to allow you to just study our update course.

The Update Course

This course allows you to experience a lot of the same rich content as the full course but only focusses on the core changes from 17th Edition amendment 3. The study will be in the same style as the Full Course and you will view high quality video content along with interactive sections, revision exercises and exam tips. Everyone studies differently and will need to work in their own way and learn at their own pace. However, we anticipate that if you have a good residual knowledge of BS 7671:2008(2015), getting yourself to exam readiness with our update course should take around 5-7 hours.

The Full Course

Those who haven't sat a BS 7671 exam for a while and who may be a bit rusty on the regs or, indeed, are coming to the qualification for the first time should choose the Full Course. This will work through the 18th Edition book and not assume any knowledge beyond the principle that you are an electrician or will very soon become one and so have greater than the average understanding of the principles of electrical installations.

60 questions in 120 minutes is tough. Not only does the course prepare you with the knowledge you need to do your work as an electrician or supervisor but it also gives you valuable tips on exam technique and book navigation so you can find what you need quickly and efficiently. The exam is not about memory. It is about practical and sensible use of the requirements contained within BS 7671. We estimate that study of the Full Course will take around 20 hours.

Our objective is to bring the subject to life. We don't enjoy endless PowerPoint and dull presentation so we don't want to inflict it upon you. In our many hours of engaging video content we take you where the regulations apply. For example, we visit many of the special locations in Part 7, allowing you to explore subjects deeper than the requirements of the exam if you choose to. Part 5 takes you to a manufacturer of SPDs to understand their function and also see what happens when a surge hits an unprotected consumer unit. It's loud!

Our desire is to give you a course that not only gets you the qualification you need but also entertains, interests and deepens your knowledge.

Practice exams

Throughout both courses there are revision exercises and tests for you to assess your performance. When you approach exam readiness you can test yourself by trying one of our timed practice exams. Using a bank of questions that replicate the exam experience from the major examining bodies, you can experience the time constraint and hone your technique to give you confidence that you are ready to take the exam proper. If you have elected to take the Update Course, remember that you will still be faced with a full exam covering the whole of BS 7671:2018. If at any point you decide you do need fuller study, just switch to our Full Course (simply pay the difference) and you will have access to the whole curriculum of material immediately.

What you need to study

For the best viewing experience we recommend that you have access to good quality broadband with a speed of at least 8MB/sec. The course and video content are in full HD so a viewing screen of 28cm or better is recommended but the content is viewable on most devices such as iPads, tablets and phones. In some cases with a smaller screen the interactive elements are more challenging. It depends on your finger size!

You will need to have access to a copy of BS 7671:2018 as this is referred to throughout both courses and is required during the exam.

The exam

Whichever course you study, once you have completed all the Part assessments and feel ready, you can take our post course assessment online. This is timed at 120 minutes and exactly replicates the exam experience. You need to achieve 80% or more in this before you are awarded a unique identifier that is necessary to take the real exam at one of our test centres. If you have elected to arrange your own exam, this identifier is not required.

Both Full and Update courses (with exam option) include one exam attempt. You can choose the centre most convenient for you when you have passed the post course assessment. The exam centres are spread around the UK. Full details are available when you are ready to take the exam. If you purchase the 'no exam' option you will make exam arrangements yourself.

We look forward to helping you enjoy studying and passing 'Requirements for Electrical Installations' (BS 7671:2018).
